The FEB10 Project: A Movement Born From Burden, Built for Impact

The FEB10 Project was not born from abundance; it was born from a burden.
A burden to lift others. A burden to change stories. A burden to ensure that one life could count for many.

In 2017-2018, during his National Youth Service, our founder Sunny Willz felt a quiet but persistent tug on his heart: "Your life should count for more." That inner conviction would soon reshape the meaning of a very personal date — February 10, his birthday.

Rather than centering the day on personal celebration, Sunny chose to dedicate February 10 each year to service, compassion, and impact. What began as a simple birthday outreach, visiting orphanages in Ibadan with gifts, care, and love, quickly revealed the transformative power of intentional giving.

Over time, this annual act of compassion grew beyond charity. It became a vision. A calling. A blueprint for transformation.

From supporting orphanages and motherless babies' homes, to hosting career development outreaches in underserved communities, and empowering secondary school students with educational resources and leadership training, the FEB10 Project has evolved into a structured, purpose-driven movement.

Through its initiatives and programs, the FEB10 Project has reached and impacted close to 7,000 young people across Africa, equipping them with hope, clarity, skills, and the belief that their background does not determine their future.

Today, the FEB10 Project stands as a multi-dimensional empowerment initiative committed to unlocking human potential and transforming lives across borders.

From one man's birthday to a growing global vision; spreading impact across Africa and beyond, our goal remains clear:

To build a future where every person, especially young people with drive, brilliance, and character, can rise, regardless of background or financial limitation.

Every February 10, we renew this mission.
Every year, we expand its reach.
Every life touched becomes proof that one person's burden can become many people's breakthrough.

5. In the "OUR PILLARS" section, Replace texts in "(1) Scholarships & Educational Support' to:

   We provide financial assistance, scholarships, and grants to students who demonstrate strong commitment to their education but face financial challenges, ensuring that no dream dies because of lack.
